For the beginners who want to experience Patagonia fly fishing, but have never fished before, we have a special introduction into the different ways of catching trout, plus field practice usually held at locations with a high number of fish.

These ranches are centenary "estancias" with a lot of history and after years of activities they've come to receive anglers over the last 20 years. They are like lodges, located near the Andes Mountains, a beautiful area where guests can enjoy nature. This area is plentiful of great rivers, known worldwide for their magnificent clear waters and exceptional trout fishing. The regional asado (barbecue) and Patagonic lamb are the specialties for dinner and usually the owners will join you at that time. These ranches have an old fashioned style, most of them restored making them more comfortable, but maintaining their "estancia" essence.
